

First Clue

Amy, Richie, My name is agent Fleming. The two of you received a letter today with a test, a test you passed. This means we need your help.

Two days ago, after an experiment, a CERN scientist became neurotic. He started drawing this Glyph and claiming with it he could predict the future. Testing showed he could indeed predict future events.

We need to understand this Glyph, and we have chosen the two of you. When pressed for information, the scientist gave us a puzzle that he insisted “would lead us to the truth” We would like your assistance in solving the puzzle while our experts continue to work on the symbol.

The puzzle has been delivered to your address. When you have the solution send us a message.

Last Clue

We have the upload and we’ve cracked the glyph. It appears to show whoever looks at it, their future. Why don’t you take a look. You both have done great, why don’t you get cleaned up, Amy I think there might be a special dinner for you. (wink). Well done you two.
